

Casualty Litigation

Department Chair

Daniel S. Altschuler

215-587-1107

daltschuler@postschell.com

Our casualty litigation attorneys represent and defend clients, including self-insured businesses, multi-line insurance carriers, and third-party administrators, in general liability and casualty claims. From commercial transportation, construction injury and defect, and premises liability claims, to those involving products liability, dram shop/liquor liability, and toxic tort liability, we aggressively defend our clients' interests in arbitrations, at trial, and in settlement conferences.

Overview

Post & Schell's Casualty Litigation attorneys provide defense, consulting, educational, and national coordinating services to clients throughout the United States. Our attorneys regularly handle claims involving catastrophic injuries and complex fact patterns, with high financial and reputational risk.

Beginning with accident and incident response, we investigate, gather, and preserve crucial evidence, identify potential claimants, and determine the likely claims. We then assess a client's full exposure, and recommend a strategy that mitigates risk and financial loss, and aggressively pursue the best outcome for our clients.

Our Casualty Litigation attorneys defend clients in the full gamut of general liability and casualty claims. Related practice groups include:

- Commercial Transportation Litigation
- Construction Defect/Injury Litigation
- Liquor Liability Litigation
- Premises Liability Litigation
- Products Liability Litigation
- Toxic Tort Liability Litigation